History of the Competition

The competition was launched in 2022 by the Ars Augusta e.V. cultural society in Görlitz-Zgorzelec with the aim to build on this historical heritage, the tradition of art singing while simultaneously promoting the younger generation of singers and pianists.

Hans Heinrich XIV, Count Bolko von Hochberg (born 1843 in Fürstenstein Castle – died 1926 in Bad Salzbrunn, today Poland) was a member of the important Silesian family of Hochberg. After graduating from the Maria Magdalenen Gymnasium in Breslau and studying law at the universities of Bonn and Berlin, he initially worked as a diplomat, but his love of music was so great that he began composing at a young age. At the age of twenty, he performed his first opera in Schwerin Theater. He composed two operas, numerous songs, chamber music, symphonies, and concertos. His artistic activity and organizational talent quickly gained recognition at the royal court in Berlin, where Emperor Wilhelm I appointed him director of the Royal Theater. From 1876, he also organized the Silesian Music Festivals in Görlitz. He played a major role in promoting artists such as Gerhart Hauptmann, Richard Strauss and others.
